

Welcome to Grimselwelt

Grimselwelt – a mountainous world bulging with mighty glaciers, bizarre granite rocks, cavernous gorges, idyllic meadows and deep valleys. A world of sparkling water, rushing down thundering waterfalls or resting quietly in one of the numerous reservoirs. In 1925, the Kraftwerke Oberhasli AG (KWO) started to use this abundance of water to produce electricity. The Grimsel Dam was the first to be built, and at that time, the highest in the world. Several decades were needed to create a vast underground network of tunnels, shafts and plants – a masterpiece of technology. You are welcome to dive into this exciting world full of contrasts.

Being surefooted, having a good head for heights and being reasonably fit are requirements that have to be fulfilled when hiking on mountain trails and alpine routes. Solid hiking shoes with non-slip soles, equipment adequate for the prevailing weather situation and topographic maps are essential. Children are to be supervised at all times. Please respect flora and fauna. Keep your dog on a leash and always stay on the marked paths and trails. Keep the area clean, take your rubbish with you. Many thanks!

- Mountain trails
- Mountain trails are narrow and partially exposed. Exposed sites may be secured with ropes or chains. Snow is to be expected in early summer.
  - Some sections of the mountain trails are particularly exposed, shadowy and wet. In early summer, parts are likely to be covered with snowfields.

- Alpine routes
- Track is not necessarily available on alpine routes and may include simple climbing sections. Exposed terrain, precarious grassy activities, jagged rocks, névé and free of snow glacier passages are to be expected. Structural precautions are limited to exposed passages with a high risk of falling.

River safety

Water level in rivers may rise rapidly without warning due to heavy rainfall or power plant operations. Please be extra careful when staying at or close to rivers and lakes. Pay attention to the warning signs along the rivers.
